Why I Created this Journal

When I was a teenager, I had a small, keyed diary where I wrote my joys and my innermost secrets. I loved my diary until the day my sister found it, accessed it, and read it. I was devastated and embarrassed. I never wrote in a diary again!

Fast forward to a time when, as an adult, I was dealing with an emotionally damaging relationship situation and was recuperating from a stabbing incident. At that point, I heard of Rick Warren's book "Purpose Filled Life", which also had a journal workbook. I read the book and then filled out every page in the journal. It helped me to transfer all the anger, hurt, and confusion from within my head and heart to paper. Although it didn't solve all of the problems I was dealing with, it helped me to destress by alleviating some of the lingering anger. Later, I utilized journaling to help me through a difficult family situation. One day I came across the journals and started to re-read them. Although some people might say re-reading is a lesson within itself, I found it devastating. It caused me to stirrup and relive memories I wanted to leave buried. So, I burned them! Yes, I felt better afterward.

Years later, and on a more positive note, I attended a Global Women's Peace Network luncheon. We were all given a "Gratitude Diary" written by Melanie Spears as a gift. It was beautifully done, felt special, and re-ignited my desire to journal again. I enjoyed Melanie's sharing of herself in personal notes throughout the diary, her approach to recording daily thoughts, and the spiritual guidance it also offered were uplifting. Please visit my recap of her journal on my website:

Melanie's "Gratitude Diary" inspired me to continue journeying in a more positive way. I continue to journal to help myself get beyond life's obstacles and disappointments as they occur and to stay focused on the positive aspects of my life.

My son gifted me a smartwatch for Christmas. It inspired me to start challenging myself with a daily recording of my steps. I should also mention that a recent physical indicated that I had an oxygen flow to the brain concern, and daily walking was highly recommended. Although these watches have apps that record your daily activities, I started recording my step activity in the margin of my journal so I could have it at-a-glance. As we have evolved into a Fitbit-type society, I thought, why not add a “Health Watch” box to each day? This way we are giving ourselves both a mental and physical weekly checkup. They are both important to one’s well-being. Agree? And yes, this new habit of walking and monitoring my steps did improve the oxygen flow to my brain. Sold on daily walks!

Before I decided to publish my own version of a journal, I went to Barnes & Noble’s journal and diary sections and literally sat on the floor as I scanned through all the pages. I just couldn’t find a journal that had the elements I was seeking because I now had my own ideas on how I wanted MY journal to work. Hence, this journal was developed. Why not share with all of you?

Let’s Get Started

There are numerous ways for YOU to ACCESS ways to inject or cultivate an attitude of positivity into your daily routine. They range from books, videos, tapes, retreats, and social media, to participating in retreats and seminars. What’s important is to have a routine that allows you reflective time every day. By utilizing a diary or incorporating journaling, viewing a video, and/or listening to an audio, you are creating a helpful and healthy pattern.

Note: There is a slight difference between a diary (records daily data) and a journal (reflection and aspiration). Both are used to keep personal records or daily thoughts. Both can be fancy covers with lined pages, or they can be written in a workbook style that helps engage or direct you.

Sharing MY Routine

Upon waking every morning, I begin with a routine that helps me set a positive tone. Sometimes I disperse this routine throughout the day because life has its unexpected diversions. This habit has been especially helpful when I’m dealing with adversity. You create yours!

Upon waking ... I ...

- Brush my teeth to refresh my mouth and stimulate my taste buds.
- Make coffee and eat two dates (which makes my coffee taste better)
- Turn on YouTube and watch five or ten minutes of gratitude while enjoying my coffee.
For example: "Today I am grateful for _____"
- Say my prayer for the day and reflect by asking myself a few questions; then listen to my inner voice for an answer. My prayers always include a prayer for those dealing with physical and/or emotional challenges as I recite: "...keep the faith, have hope and look for better days to come."
- Read a short spiritual excerpt or chapter from a positive mindset book source.
- Record in my journal.
- Engage in ten minutes of Yoga stretch followed by a one-minute plank to strengthen my lower back, and three minutes of inversion (upside down exercise position) to get my body moving, blood flow engaged, and oxygen flowing. (Make sure that this position is approved by your doctor.)
- Have Breakfast...ALWAYS. This wakes my metabolism.
- Walk for 30 to 60 minutes.
- Turn on my laptop and check my calendar for the day. I'm ready!
- Record my steps at the end of the day.
- When I retire for the day, I set my timer and select a YouTube mental refresh video, lasting for at least an hour. I'm in a deep sleep within minutes every night. Best sleeping pill alternative ever!

Yes, this does mean that I get up extra early. You decide what part of the day works best for you and set your routine. You may have to break your routine into two or three sessions throughout the day.

YOUR SEVEN DAYS OF MINDFULNESS

*Everyone's basic need is to be respected, validated, and appreciated.
Start with YOU!*

Intention

Focus on Desired Accomplishments

An intention is an aim or purpose, something you plan to do or achieve — then do it. It's that sense of accomplishment that is so validating. And, if you don't finish, just add that intention to the next day until finished. Things happen and interfere with our best intentions. It can be a personal or business/career-related mission. Finish the intention or create a new one. It's important to keep moving ahead.

Gratitude

Appreciate Everything and Everybody

Gratitude is one of many positive emotions. It's about focusing on what's good in our lives and being thankful for the things we have. Gratitude is pausing to notice and appreciate the things that we often take for granted, like having a place to live, food, clean water, friends, family, and even computer access. Begin your day with gratitude and end your day acknowledging something you experienced in a grateful way.

Affirmation

Reinforce Self Truth

An affirmation is to affirm or assert that something exists or is true. It is also about your truth about yourself. Go deep within yourself and discover your truths before judging another. What do you believe to be true and then ask yourself why, does it make sense, and does it need to be adjusted? In other words, "who am I"? Go deep!

Visualization

Create Your Actuality

Visualization is creating a mental picture of how you want something to be or to evolve.

Visualization is taking an idea to fruition; it's the key to inventions and change. How do you want to see your life evolve? Be flexible! Sometimes the visual picture needs to change or be reworked. Keep creating and recreating.

Kindness

Extend and Receive Good Deeds

Kindness is how you treat yourself and others. Treating people with kindness and respect makes the world a better place and sets a better example. No matter how unfair or insensitive someone has been to you, you treat them with kindness. It can be hard, but it is necessary. The greatest need is kindness. Just be caring and decent to others. Use every opportunity to extend a random act of kindness. Kindness is win-win and always sets a better example! Become a role model to others with your kindness.

Wisdom

Share Age-Long Experiences

Wisdom is the ability or result of an ability to think and act utilizing knowledge, experience, understanding, common sense, and insight. It allows us to experience knowledge, take risks, and engage one's intuition for a full experience. Wisdom is not just about age, although in some cultures age gives the right to wisdom. It's about making good, solid decisions based on experience and foresight. Then, share your wisdom with others.

Spirituality

Have a Heart Centered Mindset

Spirituality is the quality of being concerned with the human spirit or soul as opposed to material or physical things. It's about the breath and quiet moments that allow us to go deep within ourselves to find answers and alleviate stress. It is the shift in priorities that allows us to embrace our spirituality in a more profound way. It's how something as simple as the "breath" can create calmness.

A Note About the Quotes Throughout This Journal

Every effort was made to select quotes that are original and that fit the theme for that month. Some quotes DO NOT have an outside source because they are thoughts that I want to share that I jotted down and kept.

Health Watch

A healthy happy lifestyle is made up of both mental and physical well-being. Journals are typically all about thinking positively. We all know the importance of incorporating exercise into our daily routine. Why not record both?

At the end of the day, record your smartwatch or Fitbit progress based on steps achieved, calories burned, and time spent on mindfulness. This is a great way to stay motivated by recording your progress. Before you know it, you are doing more than you imagined.

What I learned this week about myself, others, and/or the world around me:

This page is your opportunity to appreciate YOU! Consider the following:

- The highlight of my week was
- The three things that made the biggest difference for me this week ...
- How I helped someone get through a difficult moment or situation ...
- How I helped myself stay calm (destress) during a difficult or challenging moment ...
- What I learned ...What I saw ... What I experienced ... New ideas that emerged ...

Exercises that I performed this week:

If you prefer not to record steps, then jot down your exercise routine. Just keep moving.

This week's healthy eating food choices:

Jot down your healthy diet habits at the end of the week. What new healthy foods did you try? Did you increase your vegetable intake and minimize non-foods (processed foods)? If you have a sweet tooth, write down that today you said NO to a candy bar. Whatever keeps you eating healthy.
