

How to Mix, Mingle and Network Like a Pro

How often have you walked into a networking event and suddenly felt awkward? Before you can effectively network, you must learn how to mix and mingle with ease. And before you can mingle you need to overcome any perceived barriers or awkwardness.

To complicate things further ... just how good are you at managing a beverage, a plate of hors d'oeuvres and handshake all at the same time? All you need is a strategy. Discover how to ...

- Identify and get beyond networking roadblocks.
- Enter a venue, read the room, and make your approach.
- Avoid “unintentionally” offending an attendee or potential client.

Gloria held the audience's rapt attention for one hour and within that time, through demonstrations and practice, had everyone leaving the room at the end of the session feeling significantly more confident and actually looking forward to their next opportunity for social networking. —Arizona Department of Housing
